MR. JAMES JULIUS CATALYN, OBE

For services to culture and drama

James Julius Catalyn began writing poetry when he was about sixteen years of age. Many of his early poems leaned toward the topic of love. For many years he kept his collection private, only letting those near and dear to him (including the late Meta Davis Cumberbatch) read them. It wasn't until December 1979, at the insistence of his dear, lifelong friend, Louis Walter Archer Hanchell, that he took courage and published his first collection of poetry, Expressing Myself. This collection he dedicated to his mother, Theresa Elizabeth Major. Louis was given the distinct honour of writing the foreword to that first publication.

James Catalyn is an accomplished playwright, poet, satirist, lyricist, actor, and comedian, among many other attributes. He penned the book and lyrics for the hit Bahamian musical, "Guanahani" – for which Andrew R. Curry I wrote the music and several other pieces.

He is a strong believer in and an advocate of things Bahamian. His works in glorifying the Bahamian dialect are legendary. Through his efforts, he has brought national acceptance to "Bahamianese", the name he gave the Bahamian dialect in the mid 1970s. He also coined the expressions, "Laughin' at we sef" and "Guard our heritage! Speak Bahamianese! Use English only when necessary!"

He was recognized as a Cultural Icon and named among the 41 Cultural Warriors of The Bahamas in celebration of the Bahamas' 41st anniversary of Independence, 10 July 2014.

Mr. Catalyn is the recipient of several local and international awards. Gill attended Spanish Wells All Age School until the age of twelve, when he went to Munro College in Jamaica to receive further education. After spending two years at Munro, Gill returned to The Bahamas where he attended Queen's College in Nassau. For services to business and tourism

Mr. Farrington started out in the construction industry, but after realising his deep affection for people, he departed that field and in 1965 entered the transportation industry. His interest in the transportation industry led him to the first BahamaHost programme, where he graduated as the plaque winner from that class in 1978. In 1979, he won the National Tourism Achievement Award. By this time, Mr. Farrington had started his own limousine company, which is still in operation today under the name of Romeo's Executive Limousine & Taxi Services.

Mr. Farrington holds many certificates of merit for the development of the tourism industry and is a man of many talents, among which are singing and acting. Mr. Farrington has had small parts in TV shows such as "Roy Clarke's TV special", as well as in the movies "Never Say Never Again" (James Bond), "Jaws the Revenge" and "The Love Boat Valentine Special". He was chosen as one of the persons to pose for the Pride and Joy posters that were seen in store windows throughout The Bahamas in addition to several foreign countries. Mr. Farrington said he spent 22 years asking people if they "need a taxi", and boasts that for the past 21 years everyone has been asking him for taxi or limo services. This, he feels, is due to the fact that he puts service above self.

Mr. Farrington has been a lecture for the BahamaHost programme for the past 20 years. He is married to Curlene Farrington née Barr, and they have eight children, all of whom at some time or the other worked with their father's transportation business.

Mr. Farrington holds the highest respect for time, and is nationally known as someone who will not be late for an appointment. He will hasten to tell you that he hopes the day will come when his company will be known as the best limousine company in the world as it relates to service

For his services to business and tourism on the recommendation of the Government of The Commonwealth of The Bahamas Her Majesty the Queen has awarded him the honour of Member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire (Civil Division).

MS. DORIS FARAH, BEM

For community development and social services

Grammy Farah's childhood is the reason she has developed into an outstanding woman.

In November 1941, she was born to Rosa Farrington and Fred Benjamin Johnson. This was a time racism wreaked havoc in the Bahama Islands and, unfortunately, Grammy Farah succumbed to one of its blows. She was sent to live with a woman known as Ms. Capron simply because she was darker than her other siblings. This setback would have been disheartening for many, but it ignited a spirit of perseverance within Grammy Farah.

After leaving school, she went to pursue a career in nursing and teaching simply because she loved extending a helping hand to others. She later joined Batelco and gave the company thirty-six years of service.

Grammy Farah returned to Cat Island after retirement to assist in building the island she so dearly loved. She is currently enjoying the fruits of her labour and simply getting better with age.

Ask any Cat Island native about Doris Johnson-Farah and a plethora of responses will ensue. She is THE GENERAL, loyal friend, hardworking businesswoman, rake'n scrape dancing diva and, of course, the lovable, kindhearted grammy to everyone who is fortunate enough to meet her.

For her services to the community and social services on the recommendation of the Government of The Commonwealth of The Bahamas Her Majesty the Queen has awarded her the honour of the British Empire Medal (Civil Division).
